

On Caulfield Racecourse in Australia a group of jockeys from different countries posed for pictures before the International Stakes; ^{ENGLISH} Continentals, American, South African ~~and the Queen's~~ jockey, W.H.Carr.

As they came round the bend into the finishing straight the crowd had a chance to study the individual styles of the international aces. But this interest soon gave way to concentration on a masterly display by Carr. Riding Sir William --- No.3 --- the Queen's jockey brought his mount along beautifully to stave off a desperate challenge by the American Johnny Adams.....and Carr scored a victory for Britain.

Also from Australia --- this is a story of rough-riding. On South Curl ~~Beach~~ Beach near Sydney, thirty teams took part in the twenty-sixth annual surf carnival. They have to go out --- and come in again.

~~xxxxxxxxxxxx~~ This is the way out.

And so is this.

Another crack crew finds a perfect wave two hundred yards out and comes along like

~~comes in like~~ something jet-propelled. a bullet speedboat.

This is the way in.

So's this
