

The Gentlemen of the Press of Sweden were out in force at Bromma Airport when the British Film Delegation arrived on their visit to Stockholm; and British European Airways had a special display in their honour.

While the stars went on a preliminary tour of sightseeing, Mr John Davis, the Managing Director of the Rank Organisation, who is heading the delegation, was received by His Majesty the King at the Royal Palace.

In the evening, the cinemas were all-British --- both with their advertising displays, and with the pictures on their screens. And the stars --- here's Julia Arnall, followed by Brenda de Banzie --- were given a great welcome, as they arrived to attend the gala performance. Here's Belinda Lee.

After what was literally a flying visit, they found it was snowing hard on arrival at Helsinki. But once again, it was the warmth of the welcome that was the important thing. Mrs Davis, of course, is well-remembered as a former film star Dinah Sheridan. Others coming off the plane were Brenda de Banzie, Anthony Steel and Ian Carmichael.

Inside the theatre there were flowers for Susan Beaumont --- and a kiss as well as flowers for Anthony Steel, at this shop window for British films in Scandinavia.
