

A record entry of well over six thousand dogs filled the halls at London's Olympia for the sixtieth edition of Craft's.....where especially if their lady dogs all look and behave like perfect ladies ~~and you~~ you keep them waiting for dinner.

In the judging ring there was the job of picking the winners from a hundred and nine different breeds, but our dog-loving cameraman sorted out a piece of fancy work in a boudoir. One of the biggest attractions was the bloodhound "Hector," who is appearing in the new picture "Who Done It?" with Benny Hill. Benny is the one that's barking.

MAORIS.

At Sydney Airport --- a party of Maoris from New Zealand arrived for a tour of Australia during which they will demonstrate their songs and dances. and the chief of the Maorix Club in Sydney, gave them the traditional welcome of giving them the stick; and then ~~visitors then try to give it back~~ say: No --- you have it <sup>coming unstuck.</sup>

And then the visitors' leader picks up the stick, and they give a sample display.

LANDY.

At Olympic Park, Melbourne --- world-record breaker John Landy showed that he's going to be in top form in the coming Olympic Games. This was the Victorian half-mile --- and ~~he~~ he went to the front and stayed there. ~~Two days earlier, John Landy had run the second fastest mile on the record book in three minutes, fifty-eight seconds.~~ Now he's romping home to win by six yards --- creating a new Australian record for the "eight-eighty" ~~yards~~ and the eight hundred metres.

ALGERIAN RIOTS.

The new French Prime Minister, M. Mollet, laid a wreath on the War Memorial as a first public act on a visit to Algiers. But this normally-solemn function, was rudely interrupted by French settlers in Algeria; and rioting quickly ensued. The disturbances were a form of protest against the attitude of the Mallet Government to the Algerian problems --- and particularly to the appointment of General Catroux as Resident. Many were injured.
